Junior Girls Camp Out at North Shore Park

Forty girls participated in North Shore and Stillwater Parks' Second Annual "Girl's Sleepover" earlier this month. With a "camping out" theme planned for the evening, the girls set up tents in the North Shore gym and built a camp fire, told scary stories, and roasted s'mores. They also participated in a scavenger hunt, "sloppy wars," arts and crafts projects, and a video game dance tournament.

Sexual Predators and Offenders: Parks Now Off Limits

In another effort to protect the children of this community, the Miami Beach City Commission, at their last meeting, amended the City's sexual predator ordinance to ban predators and offenders from entering any county or municipal park when children under 16 are present, unless the predator or offender is the parent of legal guardian of a child present in the park. Last year, the city was the first in the nation to pass an ordinance to prevent convicted sex predators and offenders from living within 2,500 feet of any school, public school bus stop, day care center, playground and other areas where children congregate.

Earth Day Expo Art Contest

In celebration of Earth Day, the City held an art contest that asked children from the Parks and Recreation Centers to create an art piece showing their ideal environment or telling how they can make the environment better. The contest also recommended the art piece include some environmental elements, such as flowers, leaves, pine needles, small sea shells, seeds, dirt, grass blades, berries (non-poisonous), and twigs.

City to Host College Education Fair

May 2

The City of Miami Beach and the Higher Education Partnership of Southeast Florida will host a free college education fair on Tuesday, May 2, 2006, from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m., on the third floor of City Hall. Representatives from local colleges and universities will be on hand with information about their programs. For additional information, please call 305.604.6923.
